BUSTA 1

«Urban planning can be defined as the art of planning the physical development of urban communities, with the general objective of ensuring healthy and safe living and working conditions, providing adequate and efficient forms of transport and promoting public welfare. As a science, urban planning claims to discover the truth in the city about economic, social and physical conditions. As an art, it seeks to achieve compromise, both economic and social, in the routes of communication, land use, construction and other structures "(Thomas Adams, Encyclopedia of Social Science)
