BUSA 3

Public works consist of a wide variety of construction operations. The development of transport infrastructure (roads, ports, railways, airports, etc.), water (dams, wastewater treatment) or urban (street lighting, parks) and the creation of social buildings (hospitals, schools) are part of the public Works.

The realization of public works can be done in several ways. Sometimes, the state hires workers directly and pays their wages. In other cases, a call for tenders is launched so that private companies can submit their proposals and the state choose the proposal that suits them best. Thus, public funds are intended for the company that won the tender, which becomes responsible for the construction.
